

This is a detailed topographic map of the Chico, California area. The map shows the city of Chico, including the Chico Municipal Airport and the Chico State University campus. To the east of Chico is the town of Paradise. The map is characterized by numerous contour lines indicating elevation, with peaks reaching over 10,000 feet. Major geographical features include Lassen National Forest to the north and Plumas National Forest to the east. The Feather River is prominent, flowing through the region. Other notable features include the Chico River, the Feather River Falls, and the Chico State University campus. The map also shows various roads, including State Route 89 and State Route 20, and several smaller towns and communities like Paradise, Marysville, and Oroville. The map is a detailed representation of the terrain, with various shades of green and brown used to indicate different elevations and land cover. The map is oriented with North at the top, and the scale is indicated in miles and feet. The map is a detailed representation of the terrain, with various shades of green and brown used to indicate different elevations and land cover. The map is oriented with North at the top, and the scale is indicated in miles and feet. The map is a detailed representation of the terrain, with various shades of green and brown used to indicate different elevations and land cover. The map is oriented with North at the top, and the scale is indicated in miles and feet.

A pamphlet describing topographic maps is available on request.

1980